The first period represents the decimal point of the number. 0 Tenth of a second, am/pm Same as above, but instead displays "AM" or "PM" and is always in uppercase. [m+] Number of minutes elapsed in a length of time. If it follows the numeric characters, it resizes the digits by one thousand per comma (e.g., the #0.0 format makes the number 12 200,000 as 12.2). mmm Three-letter abbreviation of the month (e.g., "Feb"). Token Description h Time of day. $ h + () space Each of these characters will be treated as a literal character and displayed unchanged. The following periods are rendered literal. There are two types of meta statements; a given section can use both: Description of the statement (condition) Replaces the default positive, negative, or zero comparison of the section with another conditional expression. If you use lowercase, also the output and is lowercase. Valid values for the "#" in Color# are 0 à 56 (this color palette shows a list of colors matching each number). Therefore, by including a final text format it is possible to define formats such as: [POSITIVE/ZERO;]NEGATIVE FORMAT;[TEXT FORMAT] [Number FORMAT];[Text FORMAT] Parsing of a sectional format occurs before another parsing, so it is possible to have a date or time format included as one of the sections (although of limited utility). This page describes how to define new date and number format templates, which you can include in your API request. The fraction is not rendered at all if the numerator becomes 0. In the Sheets APIs, you can set these formats by using a call to the spreadsheets.batchUpdate method to send an UpdateCells or RepeatCell request. mmmm Full name of the month. The format number 0 #/8 displays the number 23.25 as 23 2/8. Also mmmmmm+ corresponds to this. Google Sheets a form of date of the epoch commonly used in spreadsheets. Given the date and time of Tuesday, April 5, April, 4:08:53.528 PM, the following table shows some sample models and their corresponding date-time yield. Represents a digit of the number. ss Seconds per minute with an initial 0. mmmm First letter of the month (e.g., "A" for June). Switches between 12 and 24 hours depending on whether the string has an am/pm indicator. The fourth format A is always used for text, if it exists. Number format colors will overwrite any color entered by user into cell, but they will not overwrite the colors set by conditional formatting. Numeric Format Token The following table defines token substrings that can be used in a format section to define how values are represented for that section. For example, the format number 00.0 makes the number 3 as "03.0A" / it is not compatible with the scientific format or with a decimal point. Valid Color values are Black, Blue, Cyan, Green, Magenta, Red, White, or Yellow. This is often used to align the decimal point in a column when using fixed-width fonts. For example, the number format #.#0 makes the number 12 "12". If you include a decimal point in the format, it will be always rendered, even for whole numbers. It is not compatible with any other special characters and does not appear for numeric values (which are displayed as a general format). You can determine a spreadsheet location by reading SpreadsheetProperties with a spreadsheet.get request. Using two sections, the first format is applied to zero and positive numbers, and the second to negative numbers. For example, [1000]Ae HighAe:000 renderA the word A @ LowAe for values below 100, A @ HighAe for values above 1000 and a three-digit number (with leading 0) for anything in between. In addition, each of the sections of the format can have optional meta-instructions, enclosed in [], precedes the format and provides additional instructions. If the number "A" "A" insignificant 0, it is not rendered. A number format pattern can consist of up to four sections, separated by semicolons, which define the separate formats used for positive numbers, negative numbers, zero, and text (in that order): [POSITIVE FORMAT;]NEGATIVE FORMAT;[ZERO FORMAT];[TEXT FORMAT] You do not need to include all four sections in a format. If the digit is an insignificant 0, it is rendered as 0. Using three sections defines separate formats for positive, negative and zero numbers. yyyy+ a/p Displays "a" for AM, and "p" for PM. Note that the actual rendering of the format is dependant on the spreadsheet's locale; this guide assumes the locale is en_US. hh+ Same as previous, but with a leading 0 for 1-9. Number format examples The following table shows some example patterns and their corresponding formatted number rendering: Number Pattern Formatted Value 12345.125 ####.# 12345.1 12.34 000,0000 012.3400 12 #.# 12.0 5.125 # ???/??? menu. E+ will show a + sign for positive exponents. [s+] Number of elapsed seconds in a time duration. The denominator can also be a literal integer, in which case it will enforce that integer as the denominator. m If the previous non-literal token was hours or the subsequent one is seconds, then it represents minutes in the hour (no leading 0). ddd Day of the week, three letter abbreviation (e.g., "Mon"). February 1st 1900 at 3pm would be 33.625. The sample Set a custom datetime or decimal format for a range shows how to set a format pattern using the API. "text" Displays whatever text is inside the quotation marks as a literal. If it appears between two digit characters (0, # or /), then it renders the entire number with grouping separators (grouping by the thousands). Note: When you read cell values, you can get dates rendered as strings instead of as serial values, by using spreadsheet.values.get together with the DateTimeRenderOption.
